

sea scenes

In an era when embellishment and craftsmanship reign, wall decor specialist Made Goods is poised to ride the wave with, among other designs, its handmade sea-inspired mirrors.

▲ Sea urchins' shapes are molded, textured and painted to capture the look of the real deal on Agnes mirror. The finish is Sea Green; the mirror measures 38 inches high by 26 inches wide. www.madegoods.com

A mixture of seashells and coral create a wreath-like border on Made Goods' 24-inch-round Margot mirror. The modern Coral White finish is standard. www.madegoods.com

"Sea themes always have a place in home decor, it's just how they are used that changes. Right now, we love elements that are almost organic and abstract, such as cut shells, branch corals, etc. When these elements are combined with a pure white color, the look is fresh and new. These looks are what customers are craving. When a product is made by hand, it has a history and a story. I believe that this is especially important now, when people are buying less overall, but will select more special pieces when they do buy."

— Chris DeWitt, co-founder, Made Goods

◀ Giselle offers the look of natural coral, without the harvesting of the earth's natural coral reefs. It measures 24 inches round. Choose the Coral Red or Coral White finish. www.madegoods.com